ECHOES OF WAR

LETTERS FROM REV. E. H. WILLISFORD TELL OF BIG DRIVE ON VERDUN FRONT

Oct. 4-18.—Just time to say I am well. This is one of the days that touch the depths of men's souls. Helped in field hospital nearly all day. All yesterday we served free hot coffee, chocolate, cigars, cakes, matches, etc. Wrote many money orders earlier and did all I could.

Oct. 5.—Had a fairly quiet night. but slept only by spells—could not keep warm—most of my bedding is not with me now. Slept in a cellar—dry, but damp. My battalion moved last night. I will join them today. Am waiting for supplies. Am in one of the recaptured towns. The past two weeks have been days of move. First we went into a woods; rain, mud and cold. Some slept in small tents, some in the open. Then a trip by truck about 80 kilometers, and more woods, mud, etc. At both places served hot chocolate, wrote many money orders, sold cigars, etc., when we could get them. Sunday afternoon were told to get ready to move. Started about dark, packs on our backs. Walked through mud for about a mile; were loaded into trucks, rode probably 25 miles, but on account of the enormous traffic and delays it took till 4 a. m.; miles and miles solid with trucks of all kinds. As we were rush troops, we got through; then a walk of two miles—it seemed like ten—to more mud, rain and woods. At 6 a. m. spread my blanket and slept in the open under a tree for an hour and a half. Then a rush walk for some five or more miles. Part of our men went in, was with them till they went in, but did not follow. How the shells came at us! A few accidents; it was some experience. I went by a roundabout way to a first aid station, did what I could; carried stretchers and helped make wounded and helpless men more comfortable. After dark, when I could do no more, walked five miles through mud to a "Y" and slept on a cellar floor. Yesterday, in the early forenoon, they began to bring back the wounded. A field hospital was soon established, and the dressing and relief work carried on till dark I had saved for emergency some cigars, matches and gum, which I gave to the poor fellows. Four of our women workers came up and an extra man, and all made and served hot coffee, chocolate and bread free all day. Everybody helped who could. It was a sad, impressive and profound day. Home had no day just like this. The "Y" brought up extra supplies. We were the first on relief work. In order to help till dark, and in the night I stayed here. Today I join my unit. Last night I sent two 6-inch shells over to the Germans—that is, I pulled the string. Shells weigh 90 to 100 pounds each. Those guns make some noise.

Oct. 14.—I am still safe and sound, for which I am truly thankful. For about two weeks we have had strenuous times, and the past week we have been in the very midst of a great drive. Again and again, I have followed my men up to the very front and seen them, yes with them twice when they went over the top. I think my troop will now soon be relieved. I am glad for all I have been able to do for the men. Have today received 22 letters from you, dated August 18—September 8. I now plan to leave for home December 1 or January 1. Will cable you before I sail. All my baggage, except a few things in a shoulder bag, and a blanket are back; I hope to find them some day. There are times when one cares nothing for baggage, just a skin with no shrapnel or bullet holes in it and no gas in one's lungs.

Oct. 16.—I am glad to report that I am still on the job. We are now on our third week of strenuous effort and ten days of extreme hard work. I have not had my clothes off for two weeks, but the last two nights have taken off my shoes and coat. I sleep in a wine cellar, have a mattress filled with excelsior, so am very fortunate, more so than many. I have helped to bury a number. As a rule, the chaplains write to the relatives. I am surprised how much hard work I can stand—much more than many men. We all hope the end of the war is near.

THE "FLU" SITUATION.

The report from the office of Dr. Chase, health officer of Glendale, is to the effect that only eight new cases of influenza were reported Monday, and the doctor hopes conditions will justify the reopening of Glendale schools next Monday.

WEATHER FORECAST—Tonight and Wednesday fair.

MEN DEMOBILIZED

LAST DRAFT OF EIGHTY-FIVE MEN FROM THIS DISTRICT DISCHARGED.

Early in the afternoon the local exemption board received instructions from Adjutant General Borree to demobilize and discharge all selects who had been inducted into the service and who were ready to entrain. Accordingly, the 85 men who had been drilling on the high school campus under the instruction of Captain D. Ripley Jackson, his son, Lieutenant Jackson, and Captain Grumbling, marched to the City Hall and were addressed by Chairman Lanterman and given their discharge. He spoke appreciatively of the cheerful response which they had made to the call of their country, their courtesy and patience with the red tape details and formalities of their induction and said: "You have served your country as well as men could in the brief time you have been in its service. We are proud that we have been able to assemble such a fine body of men physically and so worthy in all respects.

"The order has now come for your demobilization. The order has also come that all soldiers in the training camps not fully trained are to be sent home immediately.

"I know of no body of men anywhere in the country who have made more advancement than you have in the short time you have had for training. I want to express to you my appreciation of the kindness and courtesy you have shown us. It has not always been easy. You have been called upon to appear before the board at inconvenient times and seasons, most of you have given up your positions, but every man who was your employer before today should give you back your place. If any one wants his position back again who has been discharged because of his induction and meets with a refusal, report the matter to the exemption board and it will be referred by us to the Department of Justice and they will see that the place is filled by you again.

"Now there is nothing further for you to do except to hold yourselves in readiness to obey your country's command when it shall call you. We shall feel free to call you at any time and you will be glad to come.'

Captain William Wattles gave the men their final dismissal order.

SCHOOL MATTERS

DR. SHULTS, SUPERINTENDENT OF CITY SCHOOLS CALLS A MEET OF PRINCIPALS

Dr. James Shults, superintendent of Glendale city schools, makes the following announcement:

"I have had permission from Dr. Chase, city health officer, to call a meeting of the principals of Glendale schools for Thursday at 2 p. m. at the Intermediate school. Only the principals will attend. During the balance of the week teachers of the city schools will be asked to come in twos and threes for conference at the superintendent's office in the Intermediate school.

"As soon as Dr. Chase thinks it will be safe to open the local schools, a meeting of all teachers and principals will be called, at which he will address them, and an early notice of this meeting will be given through the columns of the Evening News.

"The influenza situation outside is showing marked improvement. The ban on public meetings in Pasadena will be lifted Wednesday, and the schools there will reopen next Monday.

"In the city of Los Angeles there were 572 new cases of 'flu' yesterday as against 930 one week ago. In Los Angeles it is believed by the board of health that schools there can be reopened in two weeks.

"In San Francisco yesterday, the 11th, there were only 110 new cases of influenza which is a remarkable showing. There a law was enforced compelling everyone to war masks.

"The superintendent is at his office daily from 9 a. m. until 3:30 p. m. at the Intermediate school, and he will be glad to meet there any person wishing a conference on Red Cross, Parent-Teacher or educational matters. JAMES H. SHULTS,
"Superintendent."

City Manager Watson and City Clerk Sherer have been subpoenaed as witnesses in the hearing which is on today in a Los Angeles court of the case of Peter L. Ferry against Miss Marr of Verdugo Canyon based on street work done by Mr. Ferry in Verdugo Canyon.

WAR HEADQUARTERS AT METZ

GERMAN REPRESENTATIVE, GEN. WINTERSELD, WEPT BITTERLY WHEN HE SIGNED ARMISTICE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PARIS, November 12.—The general belief here today was that French general war headquarters would be transferred to Metz within ten days.

The Petit Parisienne said today that it understood the premiers of the various allied nations soon will meet at Versailles to consider peace problems and that the peace conference will probably be held at Versailles.

It was learned that a few changes were made in the armistice terms after the German courier returned from Grand Headquarters, the allies alowing a slight reduction in the width of the neutral zone behind the Rhine.

terly when he signed the armistice.

General Winterseld, one of the German representatives, wept bitterly when he signed the armistice.

FIRST PROTEST AGAINST TERMS

APPEAL OF FOREIGN MINISTER SOLF FOR "MITIGATION" OF ARMISTICE MEETS WITH LITTLE SYMPATHY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, November 12.—The Swiss Minister this afternoon delivered a message to Secretary Lansing from German Foreign Minister Solf, asking the "mitigation" of armistice conditions. It is considered as being aimed chiefly against the provision that the allies' blockade of Germany is to continue. The note met with little sympathy in official circles.

WASHINGTON, November 12.—Secretary McAdoo will oppose any attempt to change the eight billion war revenue bill because the war has been concluded.

McAdoo declared to day the present financial conditions make certain further liberty loan issues and continued taxation.

Further credits, it is expected, will be extended to the allies.

The Treasury department is to continue its present system of controlling stock and bond issues through the Capital Issues Committee.

GERMAN WIRELESS SENDS OUT MESSAGE RECOMMENDING THAT GERMAN MERCHANTMEN SEEK PORT

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, November 12.—The German wireless today sent out a message recommending that all Germant merchant ships run for the nearest port.

Under the armistice terms the allies still can seize German merchantmen. It is believed that the message directly refers to vessels in the Black sea and the Baltic. By the terms of the armistice those waters are open to the alies.

GLENDALE'S PARADE

PEACE CELEBRATION A CARNIVAL OF COLOR, FUN AND NOISE

Glendale had a real peace parade yesterday, which started at 4 p. m., and traversed the main thoroughfares of the town for an hour. The autos and trucks which composed it were gay with flags and bunting, and gayer still with the happy-faced occupants waiving flags, ringing bells, tooting horns and registering joy in all the ways which have been devised to express human pleasure and satisfaction. They numbered, according to the best count that could be made while they were whizzing by, 375 machines, and it sometimes seemed unfortunate that they went too fast to get the full meaning of the mottoes with which they were placarded or the significance of their designs. Several coffins were provided for the erstwhile imperial head of the Hohenzollern dynasty, and all were accompanied by invitations to attend his funeral, but flowers were conspicuous by their absence. One coffin carried on the big truck drawn by the splendid horses of the Kent Contracting Company, served as a bier for a very unking-like figpre labelled "Kaiser Bill—His Last Ride." The boys of the fire company who rode on the city hook and ladder truck, carried a very scared little she-goat placarded "They got his Nanny." The auto of Hartley Shaw, city trustee, bore the inscription, "Good-night, Bill!" Another auto which carried several mottoes had one which read, "Closed season for killing women and children."

Some of the most attractive autos had pretty girls perched on the fenders blowing horns like heralds. Everywhere along the line of the parade were joyous outriders on bicycles, small boys for the most part, trailing noise-making hardware in the shape of cans and pans, which developed comet-like characteristics as darkness crept upon the thoroughfares and showed the sparks they shed from their friction with the pavement. It was as if the nation had said in its relief from the cloud of war, "Make me a child again, just for today." It was a carnival of noise, as big for the town as the larger celebration in Los Angeles. Today our people are setting themselves to face sober realities and to meet the issues of peace as loyally and wisely as they met the call to war.

HOME WEDDING

A quiet home wedding was solemnized last Friday evening, November 8, 1918, when Mr. Eugene H. Gillies and Agnes D. Morris were united in marriage at the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Gillies, 117 S. Belmont street, Glendale. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. G. N. Eldridge of Garvanza.

The young people had been looking forward to a church wedding, but on account of the prevailing epidemic the company was restricted to the immediate relatives.

The bride, who had but recently arrived from Springfield, Mo., looked charming in a dainty white gown of crepe de chine. The young couple are now residing at 236 N. Cedar street.

THE LUCKY THIRTEEN

The C. R. Norton family is not one bit afraid of the number thirteen as a symbol of bad luck. They especially rejoiced Sunday when they were given the opportunity to entertain thirteen friends and relatives who "just dropped in." The group included M. E. Norton, a son of the house, of 101 Oxford avenue, Los Angeles, C. C. Norton, another son now at his father's home, two daughters, Mrs. Cora Jones and Mrs. Alma Hilliard and daughter Phillis of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Merrill, of Mediapolis, Iowa, who were united in marriage by Rev. Norton years ago, and a young woman from Seattle and oung man from Omaha, Nebraska. Mr. Merrill is a son of Bishop Merrill, renowned in Methodist circles.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION.

Miss Grace Judd of 232 South Orange street had the pleasure of celebrating her fifteenth birthday last Saturday with a small "slumber party," the guests being her cousin Vivian from Los Angeles, Miss Nellie Rowe and Miss Dorothy McGinnis of Glendale. They were served with a chicken dinner with the accessories that constitute the sort of a feast girls like, embellished with decorations of festive character, and a beautiful birthday cake carrying fifteen candles. They all spent the night at the Judd home and had a thoroughly jolly time.

HONOR ROLL EXTENDED

UNITED WAR DRIVE HEADQUARTERS TO REMAIN OPEN UNTIL THURSDAY NIGHT

Because of the distractions of the peace celebration, many residents of Glendale who wish to contribute to the United War Drive now under way have not been able to call at the headquarters at 336 Brand boulevard. That they may not be robbed of their chance, the committee in charge of which Mr. F. H. Vesper is chairman, and Mrs. Chas. Toll head of the women's division, have decided to extend the honor roll and keep the headquarters open until Thursday night, November 14th. The public seems to understand that the need to support the agencies represented in this drive, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, and others, will be even greater now that our boys will be free from the stimulus of war with dull periods of inaction while they wait for the development of new army policies and duties or the demobilization of some of the troops. They will have homesick hours in spite of their satisfaction in the end of the war and will need all the cheer and comfort that these organized foster mothers and fathers can give them to keep up their morale until they come home and resume their life as private citizens. The funds are coming in steadily, the honor roll is long, but they should continue to come in and in liberal amounts that Glendale may not fall down on the comparatively small quota assigned her, $10,000. So says the committee and so say the captains of the drive who at the same time are most appreciative of the voluntary response the city has made. Make your "Peace" offering a donation to the united war work campaign.

The following have been added to the honor list:

Mesdames Zella Robison, L. Cutler, Harriett Dow, Chas. Chandler, Mary A. Morrison, E. H. Willisford, C. E. Norton, A. W. Tower, Mary Newell Whipple, Caroline A. Goodridge, W. C. Alvord, J. J. THE EVENING NEWS IS NOT SENT TO PERSONS WHOSE SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE NOT PAID IN ADVANCE

DO NOT CRITICIZE TOO SEVERELY

At this time, when the influenza is so common, and when it is the cause of so many fatalities, it is in place for patrons of newspapers to have reasonable forbearance with the route boys. These boys are only human, and they are the sons of the very best people in our community. These carrier boys are expected to be on duty early to deliver city papers. They are exposed to all kinds of weather, and in case of a bad cold they can not get easily relieved from duty.

Only a few mornings ago an important city paper was not delivered at the homes of subscribers on a certain street at the usual early hour. Inquiries began to be made as to the negligence of the boy. He was reported as having been taken suddenly ill, and on Sunday death came to him, and today (Tuesday) the body of the faithful little fellow who, month after month, arose early every morning to hold his job, is being laid away in the cemetery. Had Harold given way to his indisposition a few days earlier he might have been living today; but, as it was, he remained faithful until he was physically unfit for work. All daily newspapers are badly handicapped in making deliveries now and will be until this epidemic, the influenza, has succumbed, and subscribers are asked to have patience.

The Evening News has had in the past six weeks on an average of three boys out on account of illness. Of course the places of these boys must be filled by boys inexperienced with the route and the service is not what it should be. Patrons are thanked for their kindly co-operation. Do not hesitate to phone in complaints.

WHO DESERVES THE HONOR?

Give honor to whom honor is due. To the brave boys who left their various activities of life and entered the war belongs the honor of causing the downfall of the German government. Many of these brave boys will never come back—their resting place is in the burying grounds of France. These boys braved the thickest of the battle, they fought and fought well and to them belongs the glory of victory. To the boys, too, who fought bravely and whose lives have been spared, to them belongs great honor for battles won and to the boys enlisted or drafted who have answered their country's call and obeyed the commands of men in power, to them belongs the honor of victory. To all men who patriotically assisted in backing up the boys at the front belongs a share of the glory of victory.

Have due respect for the president of the United States, for Congress and for high government officials, but right now at the time of victory we must honestly give the honor to the boys who literally did the fighting, the boys with the guns, the boys in the trenches, who fought, bled and died that their country might be saved.

ART OF RESTING

Rest is a blessing laid up for the tired only, not for the pleasure-seeker. It is a relaxation from toil, not a new thrill for the bored. It is not a pickle following a feast of cake; nor is it within reach of the lazy. It is a gift for the sole use and behoof of him who has toiled. No one reaches the door leading to rest without first passing through the workroom.

Most tired folk have wasted much good strength; but this folly does not bar them from entering into the house of rest. If all lived wisely there would be need of few hospitals, and if only those who labored wisely rested, there would be no rest for the race this side of the cemetery.

"Stonewall" Jackson, whose army corps was swift of foot, used to say: "I like to see my men lie flat on their backs. A man rests more that way." This is the primitive way of resting. Mother earth has a broad lap and a restful way of holding her children.

A wise physician, when sending a patient on his summer vacation recently, said: "On your drive don't try to get anywhere. Any place is a good place to stop, if you stop before you are tired. Don't try to cover any prescribed distance in one day. Don't make or keep any engagement. Be criminally lazy. Avoid folks. Fish. When tired of fishing, lie down under a tree and look up. If you fall asleep, sleep. When you wake up, fish some more. Forget that you ever lived before that one day."

The ability of a man to fill his mind full of one day depends on his having trained himself to see things out of doors, to fill himself with the immediate pleasant present without having to draw on the unpleasant past. Happy is that man who can get 14 days of rest out of a two weeks' vacation.

The ability to live well the remainder of the year may lie wholly in knowing how to occupy these two weeks; for if one learns on this summer outing that the art of resting includes the fine art of forgetting, he may practice the same art throughout the year at home in his little rest room, depends largely on whether or not, when going in, he remembered to shut the door behind him.—Exchange.

"EVERY PATCH A WAR-SAVINGS STAMP"

To arouse interest in clothing conservation, an Oregon home demonstration agent held an exhibit of remodeled garments, which had been loaned to her by the school of home economics of the agricultural college. Following this exhibit, the women called on her by phone for pointers and suggestions and brought their materials and problems to her office, having overcome their hesitancy to let their neighbors know they are patching up their old clothes. Records have been kept of the cost of remodeling the garments and an estimate made of money saved and war textiles conserved.

PREVENTING FOREST FIRES

Never build your camp fire against a rotten log.
Clear away all burnable material before building a camp fire.
A small camp fire is better than a large one and easier to control.
A neglected camp fire is as dangerous as one maliciously set.

LABELS REQUIRED BY LAW TELL HOUSEWIFE WHAT SHE IS BUYING

The housewife can see at a glance how much food she is to get for her money when it is in package form and labeled in accordance with the provisions of the Federal food and drugs act, say the officials of the Bureau of Chemistry, charged with the enforcement of that law. The Federal food and drugs act provides that all food in package form, shipped into interstate or foreign commerce, shall bear on the labels a plain and conspicuous statement of the quantity of the contents of the package in terms of weight, measure or numerical count.

Federal food inspectors are always on the watch for interstate shipment of food in package form to see that the labels tell the truth with respect to the quantity of food in the packages. Samples of the great variety of foods now put up and sold into interstate commerce in package form are taken by the inspectors. Several samples are taken from each shipment in order that their average weight may be determined. The food in sample packages is carefully weighed or measured. If the packages are found to be short in weight or measure, the party responsible for the shipment may be prosecuted under the criminal section of the law.

The Federal food and drugs act does not apply to foods which are sold and consumed within the State where produced or manufactured. It applies to foods that are shipped from one State to another, or to or from a foreign country, or manufactured or sold within the District of Columbia of a Territory. Many States have net weight or measure laws, however, which protect the housewife from short weight or measure in package foods produced and sold within the State. The Federal food officials and the State food officials co-operate in the work of enforcing the food laws in order that abuses which can not be reached under one law may be corrected under the other.

The variety and quantity of foods put up and sold in package form has increased rapidly in recent years. Nearly every kind of food may now be bought in can, box, bottle, basket, case, carton, sack, or other form of package. Canned fruits, vegetables and meats have long been on the market and can be obtained at all grocery stores. Other foods regularly sold in large quantity in package form are coffees, teas, spices, flavoring extracts, baking powders, sirups, vinegars, jams, jellies, preserves, flour, olive oil, candy, catsup, bakery products, butter, cheese, breakfast foods, fresh fruits and vegetables, and beverages.

BETTER GRAPEFRUIT FOR CALIFORNIA

The reputation of California grapefruit has been injured in the past by the fact that the Marsh variety, which is the only important grapefruit variety now grown in that State, is composed of a number of strains, according to specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. No recognition previously had been made of these strains, some of which are of a decidedly inferior nature, in the same package has caused a great handicap both to the growers and consumers.

Investigations conducted by the Federal specialists, reported in Bulletin 697, "Citrus Fruit, Improvement: a Study of Bud Variation in the Marsh Grapefruit," just published by the department, show there are six important strains which have arisen from bud variations in the Marsh variety. The only strain of this variety which should be propagated is the Marsh. This bears a smooth, flat, thin-skinned fruit which is commercially seedless. The investigators are confident that the Marsh strain can be established and maintained and variations within the strain reduced to a minimum through bud selection based on individual tree performance records.

Prominent among the strains which should be and are being eliminated are the Bell, Seedy, and Corrugated. Healthy trees of undesirable strains can be successfully top-worked by using select buds from fruit bearing wood from performance record trees of the Marsh strain. A practical method of locating the most desirable trees in commercial orchards is presented by the department in Farmers' Bulletin 794, entitled "Citrus Fruit Improvement: How to Secure and Use Tree-Performance Records." Both of these bulletins can be obtained free upon application so long as the supply lasts.

FOOD INSPECTORS TOLD TO WATCH FOR FRAUDULENT OLIVE OIL

Food inspectors have been instructed by the officials in charge of the enforcement of the Federal food and drugs act to inspect interstate shipments of olive oil, in order to prevent the sale in interstate commerce of cheaper vegetable oils under the name of olive oil.

Very little olive oil is now being imported, say the officials, and the domestic olive oil is not sufficient to supply the demand. The abnormally high price of genuine olive oil has tempted unscrupulous dealers to mix cheaper vegetable oils with a little genuine olive oil and to sell the mixture labeled as olive oil. Cottonseed oil, corn oil, and soy-bean oil are the principal substitutes used.

Several seizures have been made and a number of prosecutions are now pending in the Federal courts as the result of finding in interstate commerce products labeled "olive oil," which upon analysis were found to consist largely of cottonseed oil. Cottonseed, corn, and soy-bean oils are palatable oils which are not injurious to health and there is no objection to their sale as food when properly labeled, say the officials. Their sale as olive oil, however, is a fraud, and their shipment in interstate or foreign commerce labeled as olive oil is a violation of the Federal food and drugs act. The sale of cottonseed, corn, or soy-bean oils under the name of olive oil is also a violation of the laws of most States. State and city food inspectors are co-operating with the Federal food inspectors in stopping this form of adulteration.

COLLECTING FOREST RANGE PLANTS

More than 35,000 plant specimens, representing 4,800 species, have been collected on national forests and purchase areas by forest service officers in connection with the extensive studies made of the distribution, natural habits and economic importance of the range flora. The data obtained have direct application to many phases of range management, such as intensive range utilization, especially with a view to minimum interference with the requirements of the important forage plants and the utilization of each type at the time and by the class of stock to which it is best adapted. Use of these data is also made in the detection, eradication and fencing of poisonous plant areas, in natural range reseeding, and other range studies.

Personals

Mrs. Grover Reel of Long Beach is visiting Mrs. Grace Halliday, 1612 Vine street.

Miss Ina Whitaker, who has been confined to her home by illness for the past three weeks, was able to be out yesterday.

J. M. Banker of 215 North Cedar street is so far convalescent from the "flu" that he is able to sit up for short intervals.

Mr. Cole, of 132 South Franklin court, is ill of the "flu," but is not regarded as dangerously sick. He is a brother of Rev. Clifford Cole.

Mr. and Mrs. Lamberty have purchased the home of Prof. and Mrs. Richardson D. White of Wilson avenue. Mrs. White is now looking for a house to rent.

Mrs. Earl Walk of El Portal, Yosemite National Park, arrived Monday to spend two weeks with her mother, Mrs. Rinard, and sister, Mrs. Grace Halliday, at 1612 Vine street.

Mrs. John M. Freeman, of the Fairchild Apartments, has had a card from her son Verne, advising her of his safe arrival in Siberia. He wrote that he was well and very busy, but gave no details.

The J. H. and Blake Franklin families drove to Manhattan Beach Sunday, taking as their guests Margery Yarrick, and Denise Berry. Their luncheon was spread in the pavilion and they had an exceedingly pleasant day.

The C. M. Van Dyke family which moved to 325 Acacia avenue recently, has been through a siege with "flu." The two children have been quite ill and were convalescent when Earl had a relapse on Sunday and was threatened with pneumonia. He is much better this morning, however.

Mrs. Jackson, chief clerk of the exemption board, was taken ill yesterday, and was thought to have the "flu," but a night's rest has so far restored her that it is evidently a wrong diagnosis. She will probably be all right after a few days' rest from the "peace" excitement.

Miss Vivian Beck of Long Beach has been spending the past week with Miss Margaret Lamberty of Wilson avenue, the French teacher in Whittier High School, who has been taking an enforced vacation on account of the "flu" epidemic, which closed the school.

L. A. Heacock and wife, who returned to their old home in Anthony, Kansas, last fall, after leasing their cozy home at 518 Lomita (old number), arrived in Glendale Sunday morning to spend the winter and maybe to reside permanently. They are now at the home of their son, A. B. Heacock, 507 West 9th.

Richard Cushing and wife arrived in Glendale Saturday, having made the trip from Boston, Mass., in six weeks without a puncture. They are at the home of J. S. Walker and wife, 1561 Vine street. Mrs. Walker and Mr. Cushing are brother and sister. The Cushings came to spend the winter and may locate here permanently.

Mrs. M. L. Weaver is in receipt of letters reporting the complete recovery of Mrs. A. L. Weaver, who herself writes that she is "better than ever" since she got over her light attack of "flu." Mr. Weaver is very happy in his work with the Hercules Powder Company and he and Mrs. Weaver are pleasantly situated in a new apartment into which they have recently moved.

Chester Weaver has written his mother of the celebration which the boys in camp enjoyed when news was received that the Kaiser had abdicated, and they have probably had a revival of the fun in celebration of the armistice. He writes his mother that now there will be no Harvard Training School for him. She will be as well satisfied to have him come home and complete his course in Glendale Union High.

William Chappell of Louise street, who until a short time ago conducted a successful dry goods store in Glendale, is leaving Thursday morning at 9 o'clock for Holden, Mo., which is not far from Kansas City, where he will be the guest of his daughter for part of the winter. He will also visit his son in Iowa. Mrs. Chappell is in a hospital, but is improving in health. Mr. Chappell has leased his home, but expects to return to Glendale in March.

James Shults, superintendent of city schools, and his family will take possession Thursday of the attractive house they have leased at 1423 South Brand boulevard, the home of Mrs. A. L. Bancroft, on the corner of Brand and Laurel avenues. It was formerly occupied by Mrs. Pearl Keller as headquarters for her school of dancing, and is charming in its appointments, both within and without. Mr. and Mrs. Shults will be glad to be established in Glendale and to make acquaintance with its people.

Little William La Fountain of Acacia avenue, who has been ill of the "flu," was out yesterday for the first time.

Miss Alice Frank, who suffered from a fall some weeks ago, is still under the doctor's care and is not recovering as rapidly as her friends would wish.

Cameron Thom has left at the office of the Evening News some splendid specimens of the Escalando Olive gathered from trees on his ranch. They are very large and handsome in coloring and a novelty which should interest horticulturists.

Mrs. James Mullen of Harvard street has been advised that the Boyd family, which expected to move from San Pedro to 211 East Harvard street this week are now in quarantine with influenza and will not be able to take up their residence here until the ban is lifted.

Mrs. G. H. Rowe of Orange street gives encouraging reports of the invalids in her neighborhood. Miss Naomi Platt of 204 South Orange street is making an excellent recovry; H. P. Courtney of the gas office, who resides at 217 South Orange and who has been very ill of pneumonia, is now convalescent while Mrs. Harry McCluskey of 232 South Orange, whose life was despaired of for a time last week, is very much improved. Her daughter, who is taking a nurse's training in the Pacific Hospital, is here on a few days' leave and is looking after her mother.

CHANGES IN CITY HALL.

Under plans submitted by City Manager Watson and approved by the board of trustees, a portion of the partitions in the downstairs offices in the City Hall, which were occupied by City Engineer Lynch, have been removed, leaving a front room which will be arranged for the use of the city manager, while the city engineer and street superintendent will also be accommodated with office quarters. The room upstairs adjoining the council chamber, which has been used as an office by the city manager and also as a committee room for the trustees, will return to its original use as a conference room.

SOLDIERS' CHRISTMAS PACKAGES.

Mrs. Bartlett, chairman of the Christmas package committee, is reminding the friends of soldier boys who have received the Christmas labels that the sooner they call for and fill the soldier cartons and place them in the mails, the more likely they are to go through and reach the European camps in time for Christmas. The government has announced that they cannot be received at post offices after the middle of November. The time is getting short and none of it should be wasted in procrastination. More than ever our boys who have been fightinig the battles of world democracy, and out of their slender pay contributing to the relief of the destitute civilians in the war zone, need the cheer of a Christmas package from home. Glendaleans should get busy. The headquarters of the committee are just north of the post office on Brand boulevard.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mrs. S. J. Wright and family wish to thank the Glendale Wednesday Club for the beautiful floral piece and kind remembrance.

HONOR ROLL EXTENDED.

PATRIOTIC BILL PAYING

The Associated Retail Credit Men of New York City are planning to distribute this notice among charge customers:

"At this time, when the United States Government is doing its utmost to stamp out waste wherever waste exists, it should be one of the obligations of the shopping public to pay their bills promptly.

By so doing men and women engaged in writing dunning letters and other collection work would be released for more important labor. The saving thus made would give the merchant an opportunity to invest it in liberty bonds or subscribe to the Red Cross.

"Unproductive effort must be eliminated. Therefore, it is the duty of every one to co-operate by the prompt payment of their bills. Why not begin now?"

The case might have been put still stronger. If it is wasteful from the merchant's standpoint to have bills running over their allotted time, it is just as bad for the consumer, because the needless expense saddled on the merchant is inevitably passed on to him, in higher prices for what he buys. It is bad for everybody, because slow payment of bills by any class of people makes a weak link in the financial system, slowing up the circulation of money, making less available cash and limiting borrowing and lending power.

If everybody would pay his bills as promptly as possible, it would speed things up along the line, saving money, labor, time and worry, helping business in general and thereby helping to win the war.

M'ADOO'S DOLLAR DINNERS

While the Government has undertaken many novel enterprises during these strenuous war times, Mr. McAdoo, in carrying out his dollar-dinner idea on dining cars, is probably dealing with one of the most delicate propositions that a Federal official has ever undertaken to handle.

People nowadays are surprised at almost nothing, and have come to display only momentary interest in the matter of who runs the railroads, telegraph or telephone lines, or other public utilities during the war period, and they even submit, without serious mental agitation, to the proposition of having the Government fix the price of wheat and other necessaries, and limit their rations of sugar and other foods as much as may be considered necessary. But it certainly gives one an awful jolt when a public official goes to the extent to which our National Railroad Director has gone in prescribing just exactly what every one of the millions of our people who travel shall eat for dinner whenever they are so unfortunate as to be compelled to ride on a railroad train.

Of course when our national supply of any food is inadequate or when, as in the case of certain kinds of meat, the needs of our soldiers require that civilians reduce their consumption of any given article, the public, as has been demonstrated, is perfectly willing to substitute other foods, but we are hardly prepared to believe that the condition of America's food supply is such that it is necessary for anyone to lay down a hard and fast rule as to the precise kind and the exact amount of food which each person who travels throughout the United States shall eat for dinner.

Mr. McAdoo may be very fond of tomato soup of the kind that was prescribed for the unfortunate traveling public on the second day of his remarkable experiment in dietetics; but why compel millions of weary travelers to eat something which three-fourths of them do not relish, when oysters and many other kinds of soup-materials are abundant and readily available? Moreover, while Mr. McAdoo may like "apple tapioca pudding," such as was provided for the same eventful day—even though the pudding has only a microscopic bit of apple and even less tapioca—it is certainly expecting too much to ask people to submit without a murmur to our august Director's epicurean taste for such insipid and indigestible conglomerations when there is no scarcity of material for desserts which are both wholesome and delicious.

Mr. McAadoo's intentions are doubtless beyond reproach in this matter, and the time may come when our food supply will be so scanty that some such rationing is necessary, but until that unhappy day arrives, for goodness sake, Mr. Railroad Director, please don't feed the traveling public from a common trough like so many swine! Of course we are deeply interested in the conservation of food and labor, but we feel that it is also important to conserve health and good nature.—General Welfare League Bulletin.

LEOPARD CHANGES HIS SPOTS

One ethiopian has changed his color and one leopard has changed his spots and the unexpected miracle has happened.

When the Nation is steaming in the collar for man-power and the States are sweating blood for taxes, an official resigns.

Building Inspector Fred Harrison of Sacramento resigns his job and says any cheap deputy can do the work, as there is nothing to do.

In justice to himself and the public he has ceased to take money he did not earn on a job with nothing to do.

If his example were followed, thousands of men and women would be doing something else tomorrow all over our country and quit drawing unearned money.

In California a few years ago the number of State employes was about 900, and today by expanding State functions it has reached 9,000.

The same conditions are to be found in every western State, in many counties and cities, and the evil grows at each legislative session.

The policies, legislation, expansion of new fields for political exploitation, all come from the office-holding class, not from the people.

But one has been conscience-smitten, has reformed, has confessed, has owned up that as department head he was a supernumerary. Let us hope.

STUBBORN

So many feats that would look impossible in peace have been performed during the war that a new self-confidence must animate the nations in attacking their perennial minor problems. Is the British empire, after all that it has done, to quail before the task of making its coinage decimal? A royal commission has been appointed to study the advisability of the change. Lord Southwark's bill to effect it is approved by chambers of commerce, the Institute of Banking, and various scientific societies. The arguments that Jefferson put so strongly years ago for breaking away from pounds and pence are more cogent than ever, for England, with the passage of years, has been left almost alone in refusing to adopt the decimal system; even parts of the empire use dollars and cents now. Can the temporary confusion and inconvenience of the change loom as obstacles half so formidably as they did before the people of that country showed they could alter their whole activity to the veriest details of existence in order to win the war?

AIR MAIL PLANNED

The Italian Government has just approved plans for inauguration of an aerial postal and communication service between Italy and the Orient.

The project is a continuation of the one that already has been officially provided for in France.

The Italian project takes up the service at Nice and provides for its continuation to Rome and Brindisi, from which port on the Adriatic an aerial line will be established to Vallona, the new Italian naval base on the eastern coast of the Adriatic, and from there on to Salonika.

Trial flights have been made over the entire proposed line from London to Salonika, and every detail has been worked out.

It is expected that the entire service will be inaugurated in the very near future. For the time being, it will be used largely for carrying governmental and military dispatches between the Governments of England, France, Italy and the Allied base at Saloniki, but later on may be developed to such a point as to be able to handle a postal service for the public as well.

WAR TIME ECONOMY

Benjamin Franklin's daughter Sally once wrote her father for pins, lace and feathers from Paris with which to decorate her person at the "Ambassador's Entertainment," and "when invited to spend a day with General Washington and his lady." Franklin replied: "The war indeed may raise the prices of goods and high taxes to support the war make frugality necessary. I cannot in conscience or in decency encourage the contrary in furnishing my children with foolish modes and luxuries. If you wear your cambric ruffles as I do, and take care not to mend the holes, they will come in time to be lace; and feathers, my dear girl, may be had in America from every cock's tail."

For the wheat crop of 1917 the farmers of this country received an average price of $2.05 per bushel; for 1916, $1.44; for 1915, 98c; 1914, 99c; 1913, 79c, as estimated by the Bureau of Crop Estimates. In the past year, State averages (excluding States producing less than 1,1000,000 bushels) ranged from $11.83 per bushel in Utah to $2.66 in South Carolina.

It costs us 24 billion to keep him equipped and only 170 million to keep him smiling. Let's do it.
